FOUNDATION

DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER

Col. Jack Jacobs, US Army (Ret.) Medal of Honor Recipient

Jack Jacobs was born in Brooklyn, New York. He holds Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Rutgers University and entered the US Army in 1966 as a Second Lieutenant through the ROTC program.

He was in Vietnam twice, both times as an advisor to Vietnamese infantry battalions, earning three Bronze Stars, two Silver Stars, and the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest combat decoration. Jacobs retired as a Colonel.

He was a Managing Director of Bankers Trust, where he ran foreign exchange options worldwide and was a partner in the institutional hedge fund business.

Jacobs subsequently founded a similar business for Lehman Brothers and then retired again.

An on-air analyst for NBC News, he was a member of the team that produced the 2011 Murrow Award-winning Nightly News segment "Iraq: The Long Way Out." Colonel Jacobs is also the co-author of the memoir, "If Not Now, When?," published by Penguin and winner of the Colby Award. His second work of non-fiction is "Basic," released by St. Martin's Press.

Interviewed by:

General Richard D. Clarke, Jr., US Army (Ret.)

Richard D. Clarke Jr., retired US Army 4-Star general and the former commander of the US Special Operations Command (USSOCOM), is a MITRE Trustee. Before assuming command of USSOCOM at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., Clarke was director for Strategic Plans and Policy, Joint Staff, at the Pentagon.

Clarke was born in West Germany and raised in an Army family. After graduating from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1984, he was commissioned into the Infantry branch and launched his command journey.

Clarke served nearly four decades leading Infantry, Ranger, and Special Operations in the United States, Europe, Iraq, and Afghanistan. His multiple deployments included Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, Operation Joint Guardian, Operation Enduring Freedom, and Operation Iraqi Freedom. He served as commander of the 82nd Airborne Division, Commandant of Cadets at the USMA at West Point, and Deputy Commanding General for Operations of the 10th Mountain Division.

His decorations and major awards include the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, two Army Distinguished Service Medals, three Defense Superior Service Medals, two Legion of Merit awards, and five Bronze Stars. Clarke earned a Bachelor's degree from West Point and an MBA from Benedictine College. He retired from the military in 2022 and sits on the boards of General Dynamics and Rohirrim.

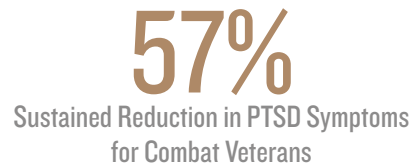

Special performances by:

Grammy-nominated singer-songwriter, Pat McGee, has shared stages with the Who, the Allman Brothers, James Taylor, and many more, and also achieved the ultimate honor - performing for President Bill Clinton, touring with the USO, and sharing his songs onboard the USS Eisenhower with 5,000 servicemen and servicewomen serving a tour of duty in the Arabian Sea.

Stephen Kellogg is a singer-songwriter and a masterful storyteller. He has performed more than 2,200 concerts, toured Europe alongside Gregory Alan Isakov and Josh Ritter, and shared the stage in duets with Adam Duritz of Counting Crows and Rosanne Cash. Stephen has sold out iconic venues like the 9:30 Club and performed at the Beacon Theater. Stephen was honored with the "Armed Services Entertainer of the Year" award in recognition of his dedication to performing for U.S. servicemen and servicewomen. Beyond music, he is also an author and a compelling speaker—his TEDx Talk on job satisfaction has resonated widely.

The mission of Boulder Crest Foundation is to facilitate Posttraumatic Growth through transformative programs, world-class training and education initiatives, and research and advocacy efforts. We envision a world where all combat veterans, first responders, and their families have the training, skills, and support they need to transform their struggle into lifelong Posttraumatic Growth. Posttraumatic Growth is a decades-old science that can be described by paraphrasing Nietzsche, "What doesn't kill you can make you wiser."
